Our “Mouth, Mind and Body” tagline has embraced our unique gentleness and spirit of relationship building for 20+ years. Most importantly, it embodies the empowerment of our patients to make dentistry part of their overall health plan. We believe that your mouth is part of your body and that health means more than simply the absence of disease. Our team’s emphasis is to help our patients acquire a solid plan for a lifetime of dental health—not just the next

6 months. Rather than treating patients reactively, today’s scientific advances and techniques enable us to offer conservative and proactive treatment options. When we complete a full dental physical we look for more than just cavities and gum disease and move past the old “drill and fill” model. Our goal is to determine the “whys” behind any dental challenge and help our patients understand what tools they can use to develop long term plans for the health they value.
